

THE COOKIE POLICY OF THE JOHN NURMINEN FOUNDATION

This cookie policy for the John Nurminen Foundation (hereinafter “JNF” or “we”) was written on 4 December 2020. In this cookie policy, we provide you with the information you need to decide whether or not you want to store cookies on your device. We use cookies on our websites to improve and develop our user experience and to target relevant marketing to website visitors.

This cookie policy forms an integral part of our privacy policy. You can find more information about this and your legal rights in our privacy policy, which you can read here.

1. What are cookies?

Cookies are small text files that your internet browser stores on your computer, mobile device or any other device that you use to view websites. In accordance with privacy protection legislation, cookies may only be stored on your device with your consent, with the exception of certain essential cookies that are specified below.

2. What kinds of cookies are used on JNF’s websites and for what purpose?

Persistent and session cookies

JNF’s websites use both persistent and session cookies. A persistent cookie will remain on your device after you close the browser and will remain valid until its expiry date (unless the user removes it before the expiry date). A session cookie will cease to be valid as soon as the session ends, that is, when you close the browser.

Essential and non-essential cookies

The cookies used on our websites may be divided into essential and non-essential/marketing cookies.

- Essential cookies: JNF’s websites use cookies that are essential for the website to function properly. On our websites, these cookies are used in functions such as managing shopping baskets and remembering language settings. If you do not accept essential cookies, you will not be able to use all of the features of our websites. Essential cookies are listed in Section 3.
- Non-essential/marketing cookies: JNF’s websites also use non-essential cookies, such as marketing and analytics cookies. These cookies have a variety of purposes, such as measuring how our websites are used, developing the user experience on our websites, and targeting marketing. Non-essential/marketing cookies are listed in Section 3.

First- and third-party cookies

JNF's websites use both first- and third-party cookies.

- First-party cookies: First-party cookies refer to cookies that are stored by the website that you visit.
- Third-party cookies: JNF's websites also have third-party cookies that have been installed by a third party of some kind. Third-party cookies are used in connection with activities such as analytics and marketing.

Web beacons

The web beacon lets us know whether you have opened the newsletter, what news items you have opened from the newsletter, the number of newsletters that you have opened, your IP address, and the time when you opened a newsletter or news item. We use this information in our marketing, so that we can develop the content of our newsletter and better reach those who are interested in our activities. Subscribing to the newsletter is voluntary, and you can cancel your subscription at any time.

Please note that the information collected via third-party cookies, social media plugins and web beacons may be surrendered to third parties for their use, and may also be sent to and stored on servers outside the European Economic Area, such as the United States.
